HELD FOR ASSASSIN THREAT

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

THE woman president of Holyoke (Mass.) college, speaking at Hendrix college today, calls attention to the way in which "the radio has increased the danger of unthinking citizens to a republic."

Radio Helps the Demagogue as Car Helps a Criminal

Effect on Unthinking Masses May Be Disastrous to Republic

SO SAYS EDUCATOR

Dr. Mary E. Woolley Brings International Message to Hendrix

CANWAY, Ark.—(AP)—Speaking here Friday at Hendrix College's semi-centennial celebration, Dr. Mary E. Woolley, president of Holyoke college, South Hadley, Mass., expressed the view that despite the troubled European outlook, "at heart the nations do not want war."

Describing the work of the Conference for the reduction and limitation of armaments at Geneva, at which she was the only American woman representative, Dr. Woolley said: "In 1914, the shot that was heard around the world was in itself less portentous than the tragic events of these last months. In 1914, it led to the World War. In 1934, the tragedies came—and war did not come! Why? Because a heart the nations do not want war. They have learned by bitter experience not only its horrors, but also its futility."

League Is Valuable
"There is another reassuring aspect. Twenty years ago... there was no machinery, no organization for united action on the side of peace and reason. Today, there is such organization. Whatever may be the criticism of the League of Nations, there is no question with regard to its value as a potential power for safe-guarding the world. It has done that already, more effectively than the public realizes, for there can never be complete catastrophes of the disasters from which we have been saved."

"If the League had been in existence in 1914, the Great war, the most destructive in the history of the world, might have been averted."

Dr. Woolley addressed the Hendrix semi-centennial gathering on "The large significance of the small college in American life," charging the cause of education to assume a greater responsibility in the preservation of peace.

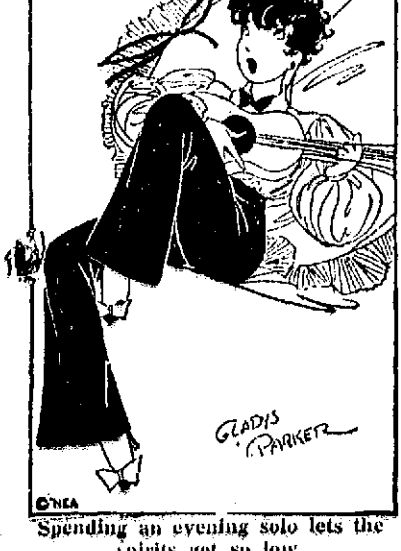

"The world needs the international mind," she said, "the mind that is able to see the world as a whole, not simply in segments, the segments that are called nations. That is the usual interpretation of the expression; I should like to turn it about this morning and say that the world needs a trained mind to meet the international situation."

"The problem of developing thinkers in college education, she described as requiring no significance, greater importance, in a day that needs the development of this power more than any age in the history of the world, needs it not only in the leaders of statecraft, the world statesmen, but in the leaders of thought in our communities, in the little groups to which we all belong."

"The unthinking mass," she said, "is the real danger to a democracy. The piece of paper put into the ballot box by a man, a woman, who has never learned to think, count, exactly as

Driver's License, 50 Cents, May Be Used by Family

Good for All Members Over 16—One License for Each Car

TO SUPPORT POLICE

Revenue Will Go to Newly-Created Arkansas State Police

State Revenue Agent Ed Van Sickle Friday requested that automobile owners bring their state license number with them when purchasing the new state driver's license.

He also announced that April 15 is the deadline for obtaining driver's license without penalty. More than 50 have already been purchased here.

Revenue from these fees will be used to maintain the newly-created state police force.

The license fee is 50 cents per calendar year for each car owner. Any member of the same family, aged over 16, may use the same license.

Mr. Van Sickle announced that each car must be licensed, pointing out that if a person owns more than one car he is required to purchase as many licenses as he has automobiles.

The license card, bearing a brief description of the applicant and names of members of the family entitled to use the license, should be kept in the car so it can be displayed on demand of officers, Mr. Van Sickle said.

Blonde Frog Is Scientific Beauty

Whitey is a self-satisfied frog sort of puffed up with pride and publicity. And—er—a she—may well be. Haven't the scientists of the American Museum of Natural History in New York been vouching to her all these weeks since she was brought from her native pond in St. Lawrence County? The reason: Whitey's an albino with pink eyes, and the fact that she's lived to maturity makes her rarer than human quintuplets. There is only one Whitey, not five, you see.

Government Opens Drive on Robbers

Department of Justice Marks 5,000 Bank Robbers for Seizure

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—A special offensive by the federal government against the nation's 5,000 known bank robbers was disclosed Friday by J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Department of Justice's bureau of investigation.

"We are making the same kind of drive on them as we did on kidnappers," said Hoover.

He said the presidents of banks under protection of the department are being asked to co-operate by leaving the setting of each crime free from disturbance for analysis by the federal agents.

Motorcade to Be Greeted by Hope

City Officials Will Meet Broadway Tourists Here Tuesday

Plans for welcoming the Broadway of America motorcade, due in Hope next Tuesday afternoon from San Diego, were formulated Thursday night at a meeting of Broadway boosters held at Capital Hotel.

A number of city officials and Hope citizens will meet the caravan at Fulton toll bridge and escort them into the city and through the business section.

Gus Bernier, state director of the highway association, announced that Revenue Commissioner Earl Wiseman would send a number of state highway police to Texarkana. The patrol men will escort the motorcade to Memphis.

From that point the caravan will continue to Nashville for the national convention April 12 and 13.

Committees were appointed Thursday night to canvass the downtown section to obtain additional members for the local Broadway club.

Eight members of the club have already pledged themselves to join the motorcade to the national convention. Others will be asked. It is hoped that at least a dozen delegates can be obtained here.

Equatorial Africa's native "wireless" telegraph consists of the goudougoudou, a large, hollowed-out log, six feet long and three feet thick. Signals are drummed on the instrument with sticks tipped in natural rubber. Messages are relayed from one village to the next with incredible speed.

THE NEW DEAL IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON.—As often as Roosevelt announces plans for a vacation, his lieutenants begin to shiver.

Last spring while he was off fishing, congress wrecked what was left of his economy program. This year the president had hardly left town before senate and house conferees were gumming up his huge and vital work-relief measure, which he had supposed was safe. Fear of lesser New Dealers seemed justified.

Roosevelt certainly needed the vacation. But there were more factors in what happened—and they apply to much else that happens these days—than his mere absence.

First, Roosevelt has shipped in prestige and an even larger number of Democratic members have been willing to defy him on this issue or that. There's no articulate, coherent popular support for his measures such as

U.S. Decision to Put Negroes on Jury in Alabama

Governor Graves Declares This Is Effect of Scottsboro Case

UP TO LEGISLATURE

Executive to Submit Question at Session Opening April 30

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—(AP)—Governor Bibb Graves announced Friday he had written circuit judges, solicitors and jury commissioners that the United States Supreme Court decision in the Scottsboro case meant that the names of negroes must be placed in jury boxes in Alabama.

The governor said he would ask the legislature reconvening April 30 to enact legislation necessary to cover the dumping and refilling of jury boxes in Alabama.

Remanded for Trial
The federal supreme court held last Monday that Clarence Norris and Haywood Patterson, negroes sentenced to death for assaulting a white woman near Scottsboro, Ala., had been deprived of constitutional rights because members of their race had been "systematically excluded" from grand and petit juries. Their cases were remanded for new trial.

Civic Clubs Will Greet Motorcade

Rotary Appoints Committee on Broadway Visit Here Next Tuesday

Hope's civic clubs will assist the local Broadway of America group in welcoming the West-East motorcade when it comes through here next Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

This developed Friday noon at the Rotary luncheon when President Albert Graves appointed a committee of four to work with Terrell Cornelius and Gus Bernier, local Broadway association officers. The Rotary committee will be: Nick Jewell, Leon Carrington, Roy Anderson and Bob Morris.

Mr. Cornelius outlined before the Rotarians a plan to greet the Broadway tourists with a delegation of Hope automobiles at the Fulton bridge, accompanying the visitors back to Hope, where they are to stop over for 15 minutes.

The 280 original cars of the Broadway group left San Diego, Calif., Friday morning. They will go through Nashville, Tenn., where the annual Broadway convention is to be held. Cars will join them en route, at least two being pledged from Hope, and possibly half a dozen by next Tuesday, according to Mr. Cornelius.

The Rev. Thomas Brewster reported Hope Rotary club's attendance last month to be over 91 per cent—the best in a year.

Guests Friday were: Robert Wilson, postmaster and president of the city school board; and Lloyd Spencer, cashier of First National bank.

Friday's program was presented by Mr. Morris, with Mr. Anderson introducing brief remarks by various members.

Drunkenness Light Since Liquor Legal

Good Record in Hope—But First Two Weeks "No Real Test"

Fewer cases of public drunkenness—thus far at least—have occurred here since the return of legal liquor, a survey revealed Friday.

Since whisky became legal in Hope two weeks ago, there have been only three cases of public intoxication reported to officers, Chief of Police Clarence Baker said Friday.

Two of these persons reeled from consuming too much corn whisky. In the third case of drunkenness it remains unsettled whether the whisky was legal or moonshine.

Chief of Police Baker attributed the decrease in public intoxication to the fact that legal liquor is obtainable. However, he added that the past two weeks "is no real test."

"Public drunkenness comes in spells. Some weeks there are many cases, a greater part of which occur on Saturday."

"Other times a period of several days elapse without a report of public intoxication," Baker said.

Mr. Davis announced that he would be prepared to give prompt delivery service anywhere in the city.

Arkansas' Sales Tax to Be Tested

Friendly Lawsuit Planned While State Studies Oklahoma Procedure

LITTLE ROCK.—A suit to test constitutionality of the 2 per cent retail tax law, before it becomes effective May 1, will be filed in Pulaski chancery court Saturday or Monday, Senator R. R. Thompson of Eureka Springs, one of the sponsors of the measure, said Thursday following a conference with Attorney General Carl E. Bailey and Revenue Commissioner Earl R. Wiseman.

E. A. Bradham of Warren, chairman of the state Board of Education; Senator Edward B. Dillon and Millard Alford, special attorney for the Revenue Department, will confer regarding plans for the suit, which will be filed in the name of a Pulaski county taxpayer.

Commissioner Wiseman said before leaving for Oklahoma City to study the sales tax bookkeeping system in use in Oklahoma that he would like to have validity of the Hall sales tax law cut before his department goes to the expense of purchasing a record system and setting up other machinery for collection of the tax.

The suit probably will be in the form of a petition for an injunction to restrain the revenue commissioner from proceeding with plans to collect the tax.

Butler B. Toland, deputy commissioner, and a representative from the state comptroller's office went to Jackson, Miss. Thursday to study the sales tax collection set-up in that state.

Commissioner Wiseman will spend Friday and Saturday inspecting the Oklahoma set-up. He held a conference with retail druggists Thursday at which proposed brackets for a sliding scale of taxes on small purchases were studied and other features of the act affecting druggists were discussed.

The American Red Cross had a total membership of 3,802,300 in July 1, 1934, in the United States, its territories, and possessions.

Planned Attempt on Roosevelt Is Believed Nipped

Writer of Threatening Letter Arrested in Massachusetts

BILLION IN TAXES

Estimated Cost of Social Security—Reach Relief Compromise

BOSTON, Mass.—(AP)—United States Secret Service agents Friday arrested Thomas F. Murphy, 29, of Cambridge, on a charge of threatening to assassinate President Roosevelt.

The agents said the threat was contained in a letter written to the president.

The agents said he admitted writing the threatening letter, complaining because he was unable to get a job, and asserting he was not getting satisfactory treatment at employment offices of private industry.

Billion for "Security"

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Official calculations that the social security bill would mean 800 million dollars in new taxes in 1937 and a minimum of 1 billion 800 thousand by 1949 brought new energy to the fight over the measure.

The figures were prepared by house committee experts as the committee was called together to give the bill final approval.

Republicans seized upon the estimates as providing new support for their contention that the bill puts too heavy a burden on business.

Compromise Reached

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Early final enactment of the long-delayed $4,880,000,000 "work-relief" bill was assured Thursday night after the Roosevelt administration won the big end of a compromise on the labor cost amendment.

The break came at a meeting of congressional conferees that lasted only a few minutes, when an agreement was reached that 25 per cent of the costs of each PWA state project go for labor. The president, however, was authorized to determine just how much was spent for labor, direct or indirect.

Speaker Byrns prepared to bring the conference report up in the house for action "the first thing Friday" with the view to sending it to the senate for adoption before the week-end. He said there was little doubt that the house would accept the compromise.

Pressure is to be put on both branches to speed final passage so funds will be available for relief in April and to carry on the Civilian Conservation Corps which legally expired March 31.

Democratic leaders hope to send the measure by airplane to President Roosevelt for his signature. He is fishing off the Florida coast.

Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, said however that his agency had enough money for the remainder of the week and possibly the first half of next week.

Battle Over AAA

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The AAA's accumulated problems precipitated another acrid senate exchange Thursday with Senator Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, defending crop exemption by shouting that the farmer was "only following the example set by business."

He began the debate by telling Sen-

YOUR HEALTH

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, The Health Magazine

How Dust Affects Your Health.

This is the first of two articles in which Dr. Fishbein explains the significance of the recent dust storms to health.

The dust storms that have swept across the country from drought-stricken farms in west and middle-west have had more effect than merely reducing vast fields to aridity, and causing housewives to shut off their homes from the grime.

Interest in these storms has also arisen from a health standpoint, since some deaths and a few casualties have been reported as a result of them.

Your body has the ability to cope satisfactorily with small amounts of most poisons or foreign substances. It is in a sense a self-regulating mechanism.

Membranes lining nose and lungs have the power of eliminating from the body small amounts of extraneous materials that may get into them.

This small amount of dust in the atmosphere for a short period of time does not constitute an exceedingly serious hazard.

In fact, dust is a normal constituent of the air and may serve some purpose of water vapor. It also disperses the sun's rays.

For this reason, the rays of the sun do not penetrate in many of our large cities in sufficient amount to be useful in prevention of rickets.

What we call dust in the air is usually a mixture of particles from the earth, the carbon from smoke, mineral materials, and also such living material as portions of the skin, seeds, bacteria, the pollen of plants, parts of the wings and legs of dead bodies of insects, starch, fragments of hair, and pieces of material such as cotton and silk.

Much of this exposure is not very serious for the average human being. There are, of course, some persons who are especially sensitive to dusts containing large amounts of pollen.

For example, in August they may have extraordinary severe attacks of hay fever or asthma, depending on the manner in which they respond to the exposure.

The germs in the air ordinarily are not harmful, because they are not the type of germs that kill quickly. Furthermore, exposure of the ordinary germ to sunlight and air, and particularly to drying, is sufficient to kill it.

The germs that are dangerous are those which pass directly from one person to another, with coughing or sneezing, particularly when people are crowded together.

A BOOK A DAY

By BRUCE CATTON

Even Nazi Couldn't Make Masses Unite

Karl Billinger was one of those German Communists who tried to keep the party alive in Germany after Hitler came to power. Naturally, it was not long before he fell into the hands of the Storm Troopers.

What happened to him thereafter he describes in "Fatherland," which is about as shocking and harrowing a book as you are apt to read.

But if it were more than an account of torture and brutality it would not be worth much attention. We have already had a vast number of books revealing the horrors of concentration camps. What makes Herr Billinger's book valuable is the fidelity and intelligence with which he describes the reaction to these horrors of the men who suffered from them.

Most impressive of all, to this reviewer, was his revelation of the way in which the racial rivalries and jealousies could persist even in the face of terrorism. You would suppose that all working class factions would unite under Hitler's hammering; yet even in the torture chambers the Communists and Social Democrats seemed to hate and distrust each other almost as much as their tormentors.

Reading of this, you begin to understand how the German workers helped to bring Hitlerism to power by reason of their lack of unity. They saw it all coming, but they were new-

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Fourteen Becomes Boy Crazy and Creates a Problem

"What can I do about my fourteen-year-old daughter?" asks a mother. "She gets out of school and won't come home. She is getting boy crazy and after school it's going to the drug store for sundae or piling into someone's car and taking a ride."

"Sometimes she walks home with the other girls, but be sure there are some near. Then out somewhere after supper, I hardly ever see her any more and as for helping me, she doesn't know I'm alive. I try to talk to her and make her see that it is only common to run around so at her age, but she keeps silent and the first thing I know she is at the telephone giggling about what he's said, to some of her girl friends, or he's looked like, or where he's going. He, he, he, until I am sick of it."

"She is just a little girl yet and her father and I are worried. We are afraid to be too severe because we fear she might be worse than ever. But she knows we are worried. What can we do."

Spunking Is a Sound Cure
I print this answer because this lady's problem has become national. First of all I would spunk her. This kid has chosen the run of the streets rather than try to do her part in keeping her parents happy, and respecting their wishes.

I am all fed up on this business of youngsters feeling they own the earth and the lopsided propaganda that has gone out about not letting your children get away from you by being soft and sweet and sympathetic. True, relationships of the right sort should have been established long ago. In every correctly balanced household there is a nice mixture of love, trust and at the same time respect for authority and opinion, and each other's feelings.

Little children in their first formative years need more intelligent sympathy and guidance than they usually get. Children past childhood usually receive less disliking than they need. We smack the little tots and let the others do pretty much as they please.

There is no harm in a girl being fascinated by those handsome sophomores even at fourteen. We cannot tell nature to mind her business. There is, in fact, a lot of good in young crowds being together, too. But such parties or rides or what-not should be in homes or where older people take the responsibility.

Providing a Safety Valve
To forbid a girl of fourteen or fifteen to look at a boy leads to trouble as a rule. Let them have their little blow-outs. Let them talk and giggle about "he." Outlets are wholesome things. Suppressions are likely to explode.

But if a young lady acts like this woman's daughter, causing her parents worry and sleeplessness and heartache, she needs more than moral suasion. "Spunking" (interpret it as you like, parents, either actual or figurative), might teach some of these kids that they don't own the earth.

But don't expect, as long as you hand them new dresses and the latest in hats and shoes and spending money with your eyes still red from your last cry, that things will be any better. A spanking may be the spiritual one of having to do without. "No gimme no take" might be pinned over their mirrors.

Constant scolding and nagging is foolish and useless. But a pair of parents with spines in their backs can be just as effective as those old-fashioned ones who never had daughters running the streets, whose children were not in danger from motor cars or other things.

No Justice
All through dinner Percy, sat so silent that his parents at last began to wonder what was troubling him. The boy was doing some hard thinking. "Percy," he said at last, "do school teachers get paid?"

"Of course they do, sonny," replied father.

"Then it ain't fair," burst out the small boy, indignantly. "Why should the teachers get paid when us kids do all the work?"

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Beauty Exercises Can Be Skipped

"Setting-up exercises bore me to death," complains a reader who is particularly anxious to keep in good physical condition.

"I've tried making a game of the various routines, and I've done them to music, but I must say that I can't work up a speck of enthusiasm. Aren't there some exercises that can be interesting if not really amusing?"

Of course there are. And skipping rope, as any young movie star will tell you, is a fine one. If you live in the country, skip rope in the lawn. If not, use your back yard, the roof of the apartment house or, if you have neither, the largest room in your home.

Skip first with one foot and then the other. Then with both feet. Turn on the victrola and hop to music or hum or sing as you swing the rope up, over and down. Incidentally, stretch your arms as far upward as you can and lift your feet at least a foot from the floor. Keep your body relaxed and comfortable. If you tense your muscles and hold your arms and legs rigid, half the benefit of the exercise will be lost.

Skip about twenty-five times the first day and then gradually increase the number until you are skipping at least one hundred times a day. Learn to enjoy it. There's no reason under the sun why anyone should be bored while playing this simple game.

Remember, too, that swimming is a marvelous exercise. It may not reduce you, but it certainly will equalize your weight and make you supply and more graceful.

The Broken Heart

The DARK BLOND

By CARLETON KENDRAKE © 1935 NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
MILLENCE GRAYSON, secretary to GEORGE DUCHENE, finds her employer in his office dead. Millicent has a notebook in which Duche had begun to dictate a confession.

In panic she rushes away, registering at a hotel under her assumed name.

JARVIS HAPP, a stranger, offers to help her. He sends her to a beauty parlor where she is transformed into a brunette, then takes her home and introduces her as his secretary. She meets Duche's son, NORMAN, his stepson, ROBERT CAISE, and Mrs. HAPP.

Millicent falls deeper and deeper to find a note under her door reading: "The woman in black came to see Duche. He told her to wait in the room in black drive away and follow him. Robert Caise's car but runs out of gas. She goes to the chauffeur's quarters and finds him dead."

Next morning Jarvis Happ goes to Millicent. They go to her room to get a suitcase of books he gave her to audit. The suitcase has disappeared.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XX
HAPP turned to face Millicent. His eyes hard, steady and penetrating. "Have those books been stolen?" he asked.

This one question she could answer truthfully. She nodded her head and said, "It appears that they have."

"Have you seen Gentry since he left your room last night?"

"No."

Jarvis Happ squared his shoulders, stood staring out of the window, facing the light with unseeing eyes.

Millicent noticed the lines of his face, the grim, uncompromising stamp of a fighter.

He turned to her and there was no trace of irritation in his voice. His tone was courteous and considerate. "I'm sorry," he said. "I shouldn't have left you with that responsibility."

"What responsibility?"

"The responsibility of keeping those books. I should either have kept them myself or warned you what you might expect."

She suddenly realized that it was going to be very difficult indeed to keep things from this man. She wanted to tell him about the substitution of the books, but knew that if she told she would have to explain how it happened. It would mean an admission that she had left the room. And that, in turn, would implicate her in the murder of Harry Felding.

She realized that Jarvis Happ had never been entirely frank with her. He had offered to help her and give her a temporary refuge. But he had done it because he had some purpose in mind. She realized that this man never did anything without a purpose. And until his purpose was disclosed, she was not going to confide in him, particularly anything which would put her entirely in his power.

At length he said, "Well, there's nothing to be gained by stalling here and looking at the place where the books should be. Come back to my study and we'll discuss the matter."

SHE followed him to his study. He seated himself in a big swivel chair, indicated that she was to sit at her desk.

"You've met Vera Duchene?" he asked abruptly.

"Yes," she said. "Why?"

"What did you think of her?"

"She's very . . . very beautiful."

"What did you think of her eyes?"

"I have used Thorford Drought for fully thirty years. Mrs. E. McDuff, of Elgin, had trouble from constipation. I first began the use of it, gave perfect satisfaction. I don't have any reason to change."

Another good thing about Ellington Drought is that it is NOT expensive. It is NOT a habit-forming drug. It is NOT a habit-forming drug. It is NOT a habit-forming drug.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson
Text: John, 14:8-24
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for April 7.
By W. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance
With this lesson we begin a new quarter. Its 13 lessons dealing with great Christian teachings and purposes, with a concluding temperance lesson on "Liberty Under Law."
The first of these great teachings concerns the Heavenly Father. This is basic in the teaching of Jesus and in the conception of Christianity.
If we examine carefully all that Jesus did and taught, we shall find that primarily what He brought to the world was not a command, but a gospel. The first and primary thing in His teaching was not to tell men that they should love God, or that they should love one another, but to tell them that there was a Heavenly Father who loved them.
It is the story of the love that God has for us that constitutes the gospel, and this story and this message were inherent in everything that Jesus did and said.
This does not mean that our love to God is less a privilege and duty, or that man's love to his fellow men is in any way of less importance. On the contrary, our love to God and our love to our fellow men are alike in

2 Per Cent Sales Tax for Oklahoma

Governor Marland Agrees to It Following Failure of 3 Per Cent

OKLAHOMA CITY—(AP)—Governor Marland agreed to accept a 2 per cent sales tax instead of 3 per cent as originally demanded if other sources of revenue can be found to make up the difference, Floor Leader Shumaker announced after a conference Thursday.
"The governor was told it was almost impossible to get a 3 per cent tax through the legislature," Shumaker said. He plans to bring up the measure for consideration in the house Friday. The house revenue committee cut the rate from 3 to 2 per cent before the bill was reported to the floor.

harmony with and in expression of the love that God has toward us. John makes this very clear when he says, "If God so loved us, we ought also to love one another."

How do we know that there is a Heavenly Father who loves us? This was the question that was troubling Philip when he came to Jesus and said, "Lord, shewest us the Father, and it sufficeth us."

Jesus did not answer him in vague or philosophical terms. He said that the evidence of God's love and goodness was in the love and goodness that we find in human life, especially in His own life given over so completely to doing the Father's will that men might behold in Him the reality of God.

It is important to grasp this. Jesus never made religion a thing apart from life, or the revelation of it something apart from human character and conduct. God is not remote from man, but He is in man, and it is in the goodness in human life, finding its culmination in Jesus—the one supremely good—that we find the evidence of God.

We believe in the sun because it gives us light. So beholding the light that is in Jesus, we believe in the Sun of Righteousness and Love and Truth. There is a glory of God that permeates the world, and we cannot see loved them, and died for them, without believing that there is a Father of Love, if whose love this is the manifestation.

So Jesus said to Philip, "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father." Jesus goes on in this simple effective sermon to Philip and the disciples to emphasize what such faith in God and such vision of Him means.

They are linked with a belief in God's essential provision for His children and with the conception of prayer in which the relation of God is so close and clear, that the disciple asks in the name of Jesus for what he needs for his spiritual life and sustenance. Life becomes above all things a keeping of the commandments of Jesus in love, because in so doing one dwells in the love of God.

But this life of the Christian in faith in a Heavenly Father is not one-sided. The Father gives to His children through the Holy Spirit the sense of communion and guidance. Jesus taught clearly the reality of the Divine Spirit that abides in man and that enriches his life through love.

It is a wonderful saying of Jesus, worthy of much pondering and of taking deeply into one's life. "If a man love Me, he will keep My word; and My Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him."

To realize that is the fullness of faith and the greatest richness of life.

That's Different
A negro was telling his minister that he had "got religion."
"Dat's fine, brother; but is you sure that you is going to lay aside 'in'" asked the minister.
"Yesh, ah's done it already."
"An' is you gwine to pay up all your debts?"
"Wait a minute, pashon. You ain't talking religion now—you is talking business."—The Tatler.

Planned Attempt

ator Tydings, Democrat, Maryland, who recently called AAA a "monstrosity," that "I haven't heard the senator denounce anyone but the farmers for practicing the doctrine of scarcity."

Bankhead, author of the Bankhead compulsory cotton control measure, defended the AAA's cotton plan but Tydings reiterated that its effect had been to lose the export market for the United States.

The Maryland senator said that if it cost America more to produce cotton than other countries it was inevitable that the latter "will increase production so they produce more cotton and we produce less."

The discussion was broadened to include criticism of the cotton processing tax of 4.2 cents a lint pound, levied to raise funds to pay the growers for reducing production.

Instead of agreeing with Bankhead, Senator Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, introduced a resolution for repeal of the cotton levy, and other processing taxes as well. Senator Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, joined in criticism of the tax.

"You can not use language too strong," he said, "to describe the bad conditions in the cotton textile industry."

He added that remedial steps should be taken immediately. Both Northern and Southern textile interests contend that the processing levy has contributed largely to a drop in consumption and has stimulated Japanese competition.

Senator Dickinson, Republican, Iowa, joined into the debate to say that President Roosevelt had power to increase the tariffs on his own initiative.

Mr. Astor's Yacht
"Yes, but he might not find out about the situation," Senator Long, Democrat, Louisiana, replied. "If I was on Mr. Astor's $5,000,000 yacht I probably wouldn't find out about it either."

Bankhead had help from his colleague, Senator Black, and from Senator Reynolds, Democrat, North Carolina.

Black asserted that the nation had lost $300,000,000,000 "of production during depression years" by curtailment of industrial output.

"So long as there is scarcity of production," he said, "it becomes interesting to know whether the farmers alone should produce a superabundance."

Meanwhile, other problems had Secretary Wallace and his aides worried. Among them were the threat of another drought in the West; consumer opposition to mounting food costs and the apparently accumulating opposition to proposed AAA amendments.

Asserting these are necessary to enable the AAA to function successfully, Wallace has announced that he would press for their enactment. The bill containing them was recently sent back to the House Agriculture Committee, however, for further revision.

NRA Code Test Is Staked on Poultry

Administration Substitutes It for Abandoned Lumber Code Test

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The administration moved suddenly Thursday to put up a new NRA test case for supreme court determination as the Justice Department evidenced a desire to get a decision before the NRA act expires on June 16 and before congress currently studying renewal of the recovery act adjourns.

The government picked the Schechter poultry case—involving wage, hour and sales provisions of NRA codes—as the strongest it could find. The high court has twice been concerned in recent years with operations of New York city poultry market concerns.

Meantime, criticism of NRA in the senate finance committee hearing ran on with the protest of another small business concern, a steel company, that it had been injured by NRA. It also heard Lowell Mason, a member of the former Darrow Review Board, liken the Blue Eagle system to Mussolini's Fascist industrial set-up. The little business complaint came from Frederick S. Kellogg, representing W. Ames & Co. of Jersey City.

House Republicans loudly applauded Representative Cox, Democrat, Georgia, when he said the Justice Department's withdrawal of the Belcher Lumber Company case "clearly indicates either an unwillingness to let the Supreme Court act, or that the National Recovery Act is ready for the discard."

Donald Richberg, NRA chief, in explaining at his press conference withdrawal of the Belcher case, said it was not the best test of NRA that could be found. Justice Department officials expressed the same view. The case involving wages and hours provisions of the lumber code, the department called "peculiar," "unsatisfactory" and "involving no finding of facts."

Richberg said the lumber code as a whole was not typical of most other codes and that the form of the appeal might have resulted in the court dismissing the case without a ruling on NRA's constitutionality.

Farmers Disagree

Ellis county will declare themselves "unhappy," said one. Others however were more favorable.

At Stockton, where the first meeting to distribute application forms were held Wednesday farmers were reported of the opinion it was impossible to list hard soil at 10 cents an acre—the federal allowance—but willing to accept the money "as they were going to list their land for corn anyway."

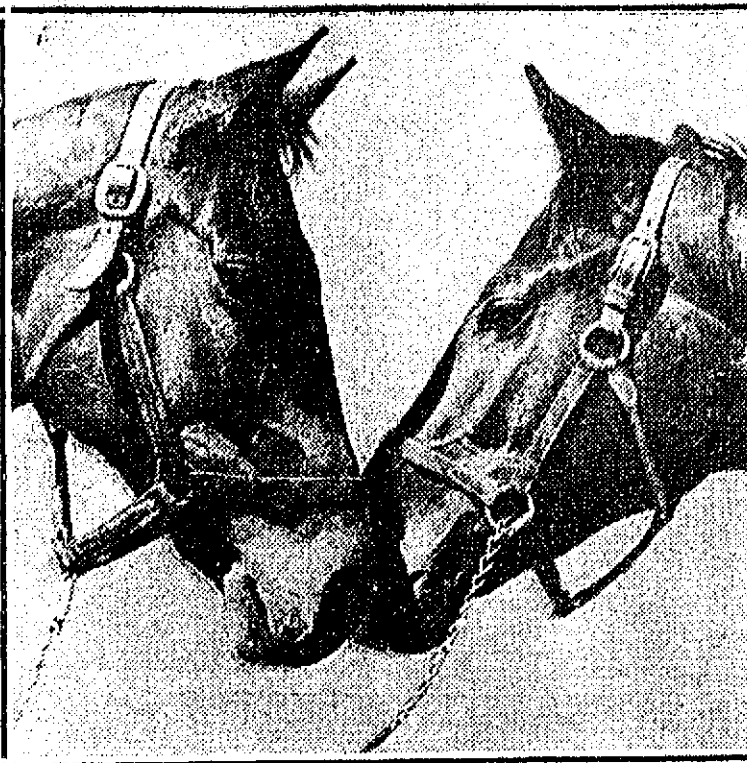

In listing to prevent soil-blowing, deep, wide furrows are plowed across a field—making a series of alternate ridges and ditches at cross angles to the direction of prevailing winds.

The possibility the state might invoke compulsory control was reported to have aroused some resentment at Stockton. Attorney General Clarence V. Beck called attention of county attorneys to a law permitting commissioners in smaller counties to order soil blowing control stops and assess the cost against the land listed.

Southwestern Kansas wheat farmers at a recent meeting in Greeley expressed doubt that listing would stop soil blowing, contending the ground was too dry and that such operations would increase blowing.

A different attitude was reported at Dodge City with farmers asking "when do we start?" Farther west reports indicated many were opposed to listing "until after a rain." Some farmers were impatient to begin the work, listing every day of delay meant additional damage to wheat prospects, especially when the soil was blowing as and feels should be included in the spoils system.

Many Democratic members, of course, are prepared to be nasty about Hopkins, Ickes, Tugwell, or all three—if they can't get promises of "fair treatment."

Locust Swarm In

Third, the locust-swarm of lobbyists which already infested the town was vastly augmented by a new swarm anxious to get its hooks into that $4,000,000—before the eyes of anybody. Few of the resident lobbyists failed to find something in the program that didn't interest them—as for instance the electric power boys, who opposed federal plans for rural electrification.

The new crowd is especially interested in contracts. Half the corporation executives in the country seem to be here for one purpose or another. Senator Jim Couzens of Michigan: "It is a matter of record, on high authority, that the former secretary of the treasury asked the commissioner of internal revenue how many ways there were of avoiding taxation and the commissioner advised the secretary that there were eight well known ways and means of tax avoidance. It has been disclosed at the hearings before the board of tax appeals in Pittsburgh that Mr. Mellon used seven of those ways and means of avoiding taxation, and there is not a record anywhere that he ever appealed to Congress to put an end to these methods of tax avoidance."

Some Inside Dope

Those closest to the situation declare that Hay Schumacher really did shove Bill Terry over a bench in the clubhouse row of last fall. They say it was brought on Terry's remark, "Five thousand dollars doesn't mean anything to me." But all the Giants don't get $30,000 a year, and wanted the $5000 winning world series share. Billy Myers, new Cincinnati shortstop, has been a member of the all-star team in every league in which he has played. Tut Stainback married the girl, which is why National Leagueers expect him to star this season. They say the young Cub outfielder was lovesick in 1934. Jimmy Collins of the Cardinals is underweight, due to an attack of scarlet fever. Dan Comerford, property man of the Dodgers, has held the position for 29 years. He has been in the National League longer than any owner, manager, or player.

Reesevelt Must Act

Disagreement, uncertainty, and evasiveness have hampered the New Deal's best friends in congress and given its enemies both encouragement and weapons for attack.

This gummy situation as to Roosevelt's biggest "must" measure is reflected elsewhere and assures a continued dismal outlook for most other "musts" unless Roosevelt reasserts his once peerless leadership.

Army Keeps Drink Spot

Army officers and other Washingtonians will continue to buy and sip highballs at the Chamberlin-Vanderbilt hotel at Old Point Comfort, Va., a favorite week-end resort on a reservation long ago ceded by Virginia to the United States for military purposes.

Senator Harry Byrd and Congressman Bland of Virginia introduced a resolution to give their state jurisdiction over the hotel, which is alongside Port Monroe, so the sale of liquor could be stopped. Under Virginia law, only state dispensaries can sell.

Secretary Dern advised the senate such dual jurisdiction within military posts might create "intolerable situations." So the resolution seems dead.

Manuel, a colored fellow with a record previously clean, was arraigned before the justice of the peace for assault and battery.

"Why did you beat that man up, Manuel?" questioned the squire. "He called me sompin', Judge."

"What did he call you?" "He called me a chimpanzee, sah, a chimpanzee!"

"Chimpanzee! When did this occur?" "About three years ago, Judge."

"Three years ago! Then how did it happen that you attacked him yesterday?" "Lawd, Judge, I ain't never seen no chimpanzee till yesterday mawnin'."

When bored into a certain season, the South American laurel tree yields an inflammable liquid.

it did Thursday around Dodge City. Dust also was on the move farther west.

Snow in South Dakota and rains over other parts of the Great Plains was effective in settling the dust, but Kansas remained dry with only slim chances for immediate rain.

Relief Rolls Drop During February

Fail to Show Usual Increase That Month, Hopkins Points Out

WASHINGTON—(AP)—In support of assertions that business is getting better, the administration Wednesday cited reports of increased employment and a drop in the relief rolls.

Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, reported the decline in the millions receiving federal relief; news that was in sharp contrast to past reports of additional thousands on charity. He said the number of families in February were 4,485,076 as compared to 4,544,933 in January.

"The encouraging feature of the situation," Hopkins said, "is not the reported decline but the absence of any substantial increase which has occurred during recent years in February."

Hopkins also said costs dropped eight per cent from $190,630,787 to $180,952,466, due "primarily to the fact that February was three days shorter than January and that in many localities February expenditures included only four work program pay rolls compared with five such pay rolls in January."

ager, or player. Mickey Cochrane says Connie Mack is making a mistake in making Jimmy Fox a catcher.

Third Time's the Charm

Tony Lazzeri of the Yankees weighs just what he did when he first joined the club in 1926. Rogers Hornsby believes he will make a major league hit from the Texas League for a third time with the Browns. Jimmy Wilson was disappointed when the two games the Phils took from the Cards last September failed to knock the St. Louis club out of the flag. Wilson says that Frank Frisch made it tough for him after becoming manager of the Cards. Max Bishop has convinced Joe Cronin that he is ready to play 154 games at second base for the Red Sox. One of Cronin's headaches disappeared with Bishop's stomach ailment's departure.

German Boundary Reported Suitable

Hitler Willing to Guarantee It for at Least 10 Years

BERLIN, Germany—(P)—Official sources said Thursday night Adolf Hitler would guarantee the three-power conference at Stresa next week with the offer to accept Germany's present boundaries for at least 10 years.

The offer, which has been kept secret, will be made through Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, who has Hitler's proposals in black and white.

A typewritten memorandum was given Simon when he was here 10 days ago.

A Nazi pledge not to go to war, it was said officially, will be in the form of non-aggression pacts which Hitler offered as a substitute for the proposed Eastern Locarno pact. The memorandum contained four things:

1. Non-aggression.

2. Non-interference with internal affairs.

3. Non-assistance of any aggressor.

4. Consultation among the powers in case any trouble should arise.

The pacts would be signed between individual countries but later could be assimilated into a general scheme.

Simon also will take to Stresa two other Hitler offers, less clearly specified and, it is understood, not detailed on paper:

1. Willingness to sign an arms limitation treaty but with the proviso that Germany be accorded full numerical equality with France or England, whichever is stronger on land and in the air.

2. Willingness to sign a Danubian pact which would closely define what non-interference with Austria is. The importance of this is minimized by official belief that a definition to satisfy Germany cannot be found.

German officials say they will not sign any Danubian pact which does not force Premier Mussolini to withdraw his support from Austria, at the same time it prevents Germany from entering that country.

district and was in sympathy with their problems.

"I have worked hard to prepare these plans and they seem quite liberal and helpful," he told the committee. "I don't think the people are damn fools and I don't believe they will oppose the plan to the extent of defeating it. But it is immaterial to me whether they do or not."

He estimated cost of the system at $49,745,000 for construction, $12,492,000 or acquiring the reservoir land, and $325,000 annual maintenance, the latter to be paid by local interests. The system would protect 1,570,000 acres from overflow. The reservoirs would cover 165,700 acres.

The drainage ditch he proposed would cost an additional $14,984,000 for construction, $480,000 for flowage rights, $895,000 compensation for moving railroads and highways, and $76,000 for special construction.

Questioned by Representative Zimmerman, Democrat, Missouri, the engineer said it was estimated 82 percent of the money spent on all projects under the plan would go for payment of labor.

The portion of the reservoir land that would be constantly water-covered would be bought outright, Oliver said, while flowage rights would be bought in the fringe section. He said the latter section would be open to farming similar to the Arkansas-Louisiana floodway area with the inhabitants taking the chance of being occasionally overflowed.

Oliver explained that the Jadwin plan, for which the Markham plan is being submitted as a substitute, was defeated because it did not provide for government compensation for land to be used as a floodway.

For Health's Sake, Give Family A Raw Deal.

BY MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Writer

Growing green things, bird songs, new sunshine, glorious earthy smells—spring! But a lot of us, alas, feel anything but springy this time of the year. With the whole world made over, we alone are tired, listless, dragging about with half the energy we ought to have.

Part of the answer to this state is more iron. To make yourself match the spring, go in for onions, carrots, spinach. And eat them raw. That's when they do most for you as beautifiers, tonic and general builder-upper.

Carrot straws add pleasant contrast of color to a tray of relishes. Grated raw carrot is good in any vegetable salad and some fruit salads.

Rings of carrots filled with highly seasoned cream cheese make attractive and inexpensive appetizers.

There is very little loss of food value in such a dish as scalloped carrots. If cheese is added to the sauce it makes

Have veal cut 1/2 inch thick. Cut in pieces for serving. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and dip in crumbs. Dip in egg slightly beaten with 1 tablespoon water and roll again in crumbs. Sauté in hot fat in a spider until well browned on both sides, browning first one side and then the other. Reduce heat, cover frying pan and cook slowly for 45 minutes.

much as the piece of paper put into the ballot box by the clearest, keenest, deepest thinker in the community.

"Again the man, the woman, who has never learned to think is the ever-ready victim of the demagogue."

Radio New Factor

It may not be amiss to call attention to the way in which the radio has increased the danger of unthinking citizens to a republic. Just as the automobile has made possible crimes on a scale impossible without it, so the radio has widened the sphere of the demagogue's influence. It seems incredible, this credulity of large masses of human beings, but the fact remains that it is so and a large part of the responsibility resting upon college-trained men and women leads directly to the effort to educate public opinion.

HOLLYWOOD GOSSIP

Baby Is New 'Career' For Frances Dee

HOLLYWOOD—For the last three months Frances Dee has been pointing out as one of the luckiest girls in Hollywood. And all because young Jack Whitney, millionaire sportsman who recently turned film producer, chose her for one of the leading roles in "Becky Sharp."

The first feature length production to be made in the new three-color Technicolor process, this film promises to start a vogue in movies. Hence, every actor in the business has wanted a part in it.

Frances was one of the few chosen. It was an auspicious return to the screen after a nine-months' absence necessitated by the birth of her baby son. Yet, strangely enough, she was much less moved than the rest of the film colony.

While she is not yet ready to give up her career, Frances definitely has relegated it to a secondary position. First place goes to the baby son Joel Dee McCrea, now 6 months old and weighing 18 pounds.

Attired in a smartly-tailored brown suit, Frances looked more like a college co-ed than a mother when I saw her. Yet her conversation showed distinctly that she is the latter. Although we discussed numerous things, the conversation invariably got back to baby Joel—and papa Joel, too. He also figures very prominently in Frances' scheme of things.

"My whole life has been changed during the year and a half Joel and I have been married," she remarked. "Home never used to mean much to me. I always wanted to go places and do things. But now I just want to stay home with Joel and the baby."

Pausing a moment to push a wisp of brown hair behind her ear, the original "Cinderella of the Talkies"—she was picked from the extra ranks to be Maurice Chevalier's leading lady five years ago—continued:

"I'd give up my work entirely before I would be separated from Joel for even one week. Right now I have a very good offer to make a picture in England, but I'm not going to do it unless Joel and the baby can go along. That would make it a sort of vacation. I'd like it even better if Joel were going to do the picture, though."

The baby is the first of a family of three children, who will be just about two years apart, if plans of the actress are fulfilled. There's just that much difference in the ages of her sister's children, and Frances thinks they're perfect.

Next Is Color Era

Another member of the "Becky Sharp" company, and a far more enthusiastic one than Miss Dee, is Robert Mamoulian, director of the picture. He feels that the film is the outstanding experiment and the biggest forward step made by the film industry since advent of sound.

"The only danger with color pictures is too much or faulty use of color," he declares. "Properly handled, the addition of color should make pictures three times more enjoyable than they are at present."

For the most part, color should be in subdued shades, so that it will not detract from action of the characters. And it should be used to accentuate the spirit of each scene.

"Unlike sound, color will not prove disadvantageous to any of our players. Rather, they will become real persons even more than they are today. You will be able to see the color of their eyes. Their skin will have the quality of real flesh and their lips will be red."

"I believe we definitely are headed for an era of color. It's just a question of how soon it comes. It may be in a very short time or it may not be for several years, depending upon how the first pictures are handled."

"The wrong use of color right now might set the whole movement back several years."
